

What's Your Story?

Hopefully, this tool will give us the opportunity to get to know each other better. As we listen to each others' stories, the paths that our group members have walked down will likely surprise you. Some will have stories similar to yours, and others will have stories that are completely different. Along the way, we'll likely discover both the commonalities and differences in our group will help us connect with and appreciate each other.

Keep in mind, no big presentation is required. You are simply expected to introduce yourself. A great way to do this is to identify three key people who have played a significant role in your life, three events that have affected you, and three places that are special to you. By talking about these things, you'll cover a lot of ground. Go ahead and identify people/events/places before it's your turn, so that you'll be prepared. Feel free to be creative with this. Bring pictures or other items for illustration if you think it will help tell your story.
